DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. The title of the invention is not sufficiently descriptive. A new title is required that is more clearly indicative of the novelty of the invention to which the claims are directed.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(e) the invention was described in-

(1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effect under this subsection of a national application published under section 122(b) only if the international application designating the United States was published under Article 21(2)(a) of such treaty in the English language; or

(2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that a patent shall not be deemed filed in the United States for the purposes of this subsection based on the filing of an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a).

3. Claims 1-6, 9, 10, 12-17, 20-26, 29, and 30, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Sreeram Balakrishnan (U.S. Patent 6,233,559, filed April 1, 1998).

As per claims 1-5, 12-16, and 22-25, Balakrishnan teaches:

- receiving information about a recognized phrase from a speech recognition engine (col. 4, lines 18-19 and 31-33);

- selecting, based on the recognized phrase an inherent handler function and handling information from sets of handling information associated with a different application, based on identifying the application that is a focus of the recognized phrase (col. 4, lines 35-40 and 47-51);
- having first located the sets of handling information, when the execution of the associated application is initiated (col. 5, lines 1-5).

As per claims 6, 9, 10, 17, 20, 21, 26, 29, and 30, Balakrishnan teaches:

- detecting a change of focus from a first to a second application (col. 4, lines 45-47);
- inherently producing a second grammar based on the handling information associated with the second application and loading the second grammar into the speech recognizer engine (col. 5, lines 16-18 with Figure 2, elements 44, 48, or 46 and 50);
- directing the operating system to provide notification in response to the focus changing and receiving notification from an operating system (col. 4, lines 41-45 with col. 5, lines 1-5).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 7, 8, 18, 19, 27  are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Balakrishnan, as applied to claims 1-6, 9, 10, 12-17, 20-26, 29, and 30, above.

As per claims 7, 18, 27, and 28, Balakrishnan does not teach generating an uncompiled grammar based on the handling information and compiling it into a binary format. However, it would have been obvious for an artisan at the time of invention to do this (if it had not been already done) to enable the speech recognizer to properly interpret the input speech commands.

As per claims 8, 19, and 28, Balakrishnan does not teach unloading a first grammar associated with the first application from the speech engine. However, it would have been obvious for an artisan at the time of invention to do this when focus has shifted away from the first application so that the speech recognizer would not have to consider irrelevant commands.

As per claim 11, Balakrishnan does not explicitly teach loading the grammar for a second engine onto the speech engine when the focus is changed from a third application to the second application. However, it would have been obvious for an artisan at the time of invention to do this (if it had not already been done) to enable the speech recognizer to properly interpret the commands for the second application.

Conclusion

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Vince M. Stanford et al. (U.S. Patent 5,513,298, issued April 30, 1996) teaches instantaneous application context switching for speech recognition systems
